

NATIVE STUDENT SUPPORT PROGRAMS

The Indian Natural Resource, Science & Engineering Program (INRSEP) Assists Native students in sciences and natural resources.

The Indian Teacher & Educational Personnel Program (ITEPP) Supports Native students in a variety of academic majors.

RELATED PROGRAMS AND INITIATIVES

The Native American Studies major Unique in the California State University system.

Graduate Program in Social Work A special emphasis on tribal and rural communities.

The Center for Indian Community Development Assists with social, cultural and other community development efforts.

Library Collections on North American Indians Strong collections used by many campus academic programs and researchers interested in Northwestern California Indian subjects. Found in the Humboldt Room at the HSU Library, and at the ITEPP Resource Center.

The Indian Economic & Community Development Program Helps tribal communities in areas like workforce and small business development.

CAMPUS CONTACTS

Native Support Information
(707) 826-4998
(707) 826-3672

Admissions
(866) 850-9556
(707) 826-4402

Financial Aid
(707) 826-4321

Housing + Dining
(707) 826-3451

“HSU is not only near my home and my family, but my major will really benefit my community.”

VICTORIA CARLSON
Environmental Resources Engineering
Yurok Tribe

Enrich your heritage, shape your future

“If I didn’t have a home-like environment like ITEPP at HSU, my academics would not have been as successful.”

JUDE MARSHALL
Recreation Administration
Hupa, Karuk, Yurok Tribes

Start your journey

Your college experience will change the path of your life, and the life of your family. It will open up opportunities you can’t imagine.

That’s why it’s so important you choose a university that values you and your ideas, and cares about your heritage. It should be a university committed to your potential, and to helping you make a real difference for your community.

Humboldt State University is focused on being just that kind of place. We guide Native students from the time they’re considering college to the day they graduate. We help them find internships, get into graduate school, start careers and more—and then we often stay in touch as they move on. We’re proud of that commitment.

Our approach is simple—it’s all about support and mentoring.

We help you get connected on campus and adjusted to college life. We make sure you have access to counseling, tutoring, and peer groups to help you excel academically.

Of course, you’ll need to do your part. College courses are challenging and time-consuming, and the demands on your time mean you’ll need to be well-organized. The important thing is, you’ll have help.

And we’re located in the heart of Redwood Country, which has many vibrant and culturally active tribes. That means help doesn’t only come from the campus and other students. Instead, our location allows nearby tribal communities to be involved in the success of Native students.

At Humboldt State University, you’ll find a community of cultural support.

Support and mentoring

“I want to take what I’ve learned from our elders, combine it with what I’ve learned at HSU and pass it on.”

KRISTIN GONZALES
Wildlife Biology
Wailaki, Nomlaki, Wintun Tribes

