

Indigenous Leadership for a Resilient Redwood Region

Shaping Our Region's Economic Future — Together

Leading the Way Forward

Tribal communities have cared for the Redwood Region since time immemorial, guided by deep ecological knowledge and a vision for the long term. Today, Tribes are leading some of the region's most exciting economic growth — in land and water stewardship, clean energy, food systems, and community enterprise. As Tribal Lands and the counties of Del Norte, Humboldt, Lake, and Mendocino chart their next chapter, the Tribal Table of Redwood Region RISE invites you to help lead the way.

Culture as a Living Foundation

This work is rooted in culture — a living tradition carried forward by elders, reflected in youth, and honored by the wider community. Cultural reclamation isn't separate from economic development — it's part of what makes this region whole.

Collaboration Built on Trust

Trust, relationship, and shared objectives are the foundation RRRISE has built over three years — with Tribal leadership central to that success. Continued, culturally grounded partnership is essential to what's next.

- Shape regional strategies rooted in Indigenous knowledge and priorities
- Connect with leaders across the region
- Position your Tribe to collaborate to pursue funding opportunities and technical assistance
- Build a lasting structure for a resilient Redwood Region
